HARBOR DOCTOR FINDS CAR AT HEIGHTS

And Hammond Police Find Stolen Heights Car In Hammond.

Police of Hammond and Chicago Heights were principals in an automobile trade Sunday morning which was forced upon them by thieves who had been operating in the two cities at the same time.

Saturday afternoon Dr. J. A. Ferguson of Indiana Harbor drove to St. Margaret's Hospital in Hammond. He left his Ford coupe at the curb in front of the hospital, later he reported it to the Hammond police.

The police visited neighboring cities, among them Chicago Heights. While the conversation was on with the Chicago Heights chief he also requested the Hammond boys to watch for a Chandler touring car which had been stolen there that afternoon.

Officers Beckler and Paul were walking along Columbia avenue, Hammond, at 8 o'clock when they noticed an automobile which had no lights.

Beckler stepped into the street to warn the driver. Instead of stopping, the fellow stepped on the gas and sped past. Beckler recognized the number as the Chicago Heights car.

He took a shot at the rear tire but missed.

Next the Standard siding several blocks south on Columbia avenue, Joe Vrasjey saw the car coming and thought he would use for a ride. The driver saw him stop on the road and evidently supposed he was another officer for he stopped some distance away, jumped from the machine and ran into the nearby woods.

A short time later a telephone call informed the Chicago Heights police that their car had been found.

"We were just going to call you also," came the reply. "We found your missing Ford standing on one of the streets here."

DEALERS DISAPPROVE OF THIS LEGISLATION

Details dealers of the country, especially those engaged in handling meats, have been sending formal expressions of their disapproval of the Kenyon-Anderson bill to their congressmen. The bill, now before Congress, would place the live stock industry of the country under the control of a commission.

Dealers, who declare they have had their fill of acts of government regulation of business during the war, are outspoken in their opposition to the proposed measure. Herman A. Kellner of Hammond, proprietor of a State street grocery and meat market, was one of those to express his opinion. He has received the following letter from Representative W. B. Wood:

House of Representatives U. S. Washington, D. C.
December 21, 1920.
Mr. Herman A. Kellner,
54 State Street,
Hammond, Indiana.

My Dear Mr. Kellner:
I am in receipt of your letter of December 17th, and I have read with interest what you have to say about the Kenyon-Anderson bill. I agree with you that business is already too hampered with governmental regulation, and the sooner we get rid of it the better.

I am opposed to this bill and I trust that it will not become a law. Yours very truly,
WILL R. WOOD.

Police today said Miss Donegan had worried because she feared her life savings which had been invested in the beauty shop would be lost. ## MIKE FINDS POOR WAY TO MAKE COIN

Mike Loring, 40½ Fir st., Indiana Harbor, now knows how it goes to come into the Hammond city court as a son and offender against the liquor laws. If Mike pays his fine his wife finds his jail sentence in time to help celebrate the Fourth of July at home.

Three weeks ago Loring was released from the Crown Point jail after serving thirty days for making moonshine. "I didn't have fifty cents when I got home so I had to make some money in a hurry," was the explanation which Mike submitted when Special Judge A. E. Thirkield was hearing his case this morning. When federal agents raided the place they found his big still and sufficient hooch to set him on his feet as he had not already sold any.

"There is no excuse for your act at all," said the Judge. "You know from your brief sentence what you could expect if you were arrested again."

Mike was given a fine of $200 and costs with a jail sentence of six months.
